

There you go! That should put your mind at rest. We've protected him from the most common threats to his health - and even quite a lot of the rarest ones too - can't be too careful now, can we! Thank goodness for the compulsory vaccination laws, eh? It gives me a warm glow, here inside, to think of all the progress we've made in guiding society towards a more humane and responsible way of raising children.

